The book explains that the New Zealand Sheepowners' set up a fund in 1920 to show their gratitude and acknowledge their debt to the men of the Merchant Service and Royal Navy. After the 1914-18 war, the wool farmers of NZ had surplus profits, which they decided should be used to benefit the dependents of the men of the Navy and Merchant Navy, who had lost their lives or been maimed in the defence of the Empire. In 1923 they decided to use some of the fund to bring young sons of these men to New Zealand and train them to become farmers. At the time Mr Lynn McKelvie's property, Flock House, Bulls, came up for sale, and so the fund purchased the 1000 acres plus the extensive homestead. They also purchased an adjoining estate to give them a total of 6000 acres for the farm cadets to learn all aspects of farming. The book follows the work of the fund, its scope, and the men involved, and also lists the trainees from 1924 to 1931.

A 2010.120.03	This article appeared in the NZ Society of Genealogists Magazine, "The Genealogist", in the May-June edition of 2009. The author, Mary Bowling, is a descendant of the original owners of Flock House, John McKelvie and his wife Selina Amon. It appears they named the property after the original Flock House in Kinross, Scotland, said to be John's mother's ancestral home. His mother married John McKelvie senior; she was Jane Flockhart. John McKelvie junior came to New Zealand around 1854 and purchased a property in the Lower Rangitikei District. His youngest son, Lynn Rutherford McKelvie, inherited the property in 1907 and had a new Flock house built. In 1924 he sold the farm to the NZ Sheep Owners Acknowledgement of Debt to British Seamen Fund, and they established a training centre for sons of British seamen. A 2010.120.04.02 Newspaper Cutting	Newspaper article about the next lifeline given to Flock House by an unknown investor from Auckland. The Palmerston North Drug-Arm, thanks to the mystery buyer, were going to bring the complex back up to scratch and would become a facility for "people who needed to take a step back from their lives and their problems". The complex had been allowed to get very run down, and overgrown, and needed a lot of work. A Flock House Trust was set up.	Good	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive
A 2010.120.04.03 Newspaper Cutting	These newspaper cuttings, one a real estate advertisement for yet another sale of Flock House, with a price guide of $1,950,000, well below the original value of the property in the 1990's. The second from Bayleys Real Estate after Flock House sold in Dec 2006. The third an article about the new owner, Mr Colin Fry, an Aucklander whose father came to New Zealand in 1931 to attend Flock House as a farm cadet. Mr Fry had ideas of returning the complex to its former glory.	Good	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive
A 2010.120.05 Newspaper Cutting	Flock House was targeted by arsonists, not for the first time, and because the house was shut up the fire damage was extensive. At this time the property was owned by Mr Colin Fry from Auckland, who was planning to return it to an agricultural training facility.	Good	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive
A 2010.120.06 Newspaper Cutting	Having purchased Flock House in December 2006, and after an arson attempt and vandalism on the building, Colin Fry is reported to be going to "restore it to peak condition", and turn it back into an agricultural training provider. A 2010.120.07 Newspaper Cutting	Once again Flock House is subject to a sale, this time in the hope that it can be rescued to enable the Fry family to continue their grand plan. The idea was to try to sell 16 houses on the property to be able to raise enough money to allow the Fry's to make mortgage repayments to Basecorp Finance, who had put the property on the market to recoup their money. The Fry family were still intent on returning the complex to an agricultural training facility. Colin Fry, the initial purchaser, had been declared bankrupt in 2006, the property having been transferred in his son's name. Since they took over unfortunately their project has lacked sufficient funds to get off the ground.	Good	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive

A 2010.120.08.02 Newspaper Cutting	Newspaper article concerning the development of Flock House Village by Darren Leith of ID Refurbishes in 2009. They bought the complex in March, and by August had already renovated six houses, which were the subject of the Harcourts pamphlet. The village will ultimately contain 17 houses and 11 sections with separate title, all of which will be for sale. Mr Leith appointed Ray Scott as site manager, and a staff off of 14 builders, painters, plumbers, gardeners etc, who were working hard to bring the complex back from its sorry state. A 2010.128.01 Letter	The letter, originally sent to MDC archivist Anna Pitt, outlines Eileen Woolridge(nee Marshall) memories of Feilding in the 1930's and 40's. She describes the various streets around Feilding which she was familiar with. The family lived on the corner of Denbigh and Hobson Streets. The streets were unsealed, and there were still open areas of land in Denbigh Street, and there were no footpaths in Denbigh Square. There was a blacksmith in Bowen Street, and a Drill Hall(Civic Centre?) nearby. Mrs Woolridge describes the position of the various businesses around Manchester Square, and some on Kimbolton Road; about the railway and station, the trains being steam; two cinemas both on Kimbolton Road-the Tivoli and the Regent. Society of the day dictated that it was illegal to tell fortunes; it was OK for children to eat ice creams in the street but not adults, and it was not done for a woman to either comb her hair or apply lipstick in public. A 2010.128.02.01 Records	The Farm Record is a Record Book for McCool's leased property, Whakaronga, in 1919. A large ledger with only a few pages actually written in - the first entry is on the 4th June 1919, and is a brief summary of the area rented (134.5 acres), with a rent of 402pounds, 2 shillings and 6 pence. The Cattle Stock Sheet is next with the various age groups itemised, number, value per head, and total value. The next page is for Sheep, followed by horses, pigs, and sundry livestock. The reconciliation continues for machinery and implements, horse requisites, seed and feed. There are no further entries.	Good	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive and Taonui. Settlers to the Manchester Block arrived in 1874, initially into Wellington, and were then conveyed north. In 1874 the Stanway area, like many in the Manchester Block, was covered in heavy bush, which needed clearing for them to establish both a home and farmable land. As the years went by the Stanway settlement began to improve and develop, and people from not only Britain, but other European countries, speaking German and Danish began to arrive.
