P 2009.102.01.104 Print, Photographic	Corporation Staff 1876 taken at The Pines: Left to Right, back row; Charles Mountfort, Frank Owen, Alfred Atkinson, Tom Dalton, Percy Earle. Front row; James Beattie, Howard Jackson, Arthur Halcombe, Douglas McArthur, Hugh Sherwill. The Emigrant and Colonists' Aid Corporation was set up in 1867 by a group of upper class Englishmen. Headed by the Duke of Manchester, their aim was to help the labouring classes – particularly agricultural labourers – who were at that time experiencing great difficulty in finding employment in England because of industrial advances and changing social patterns. Colonel William Henry Adelbert Feilding, one of the directors of the Corporation, was sent to Australia and New Zealand to buy a suitable block of land for emigrants selected by the Corporation to settle on. Colonel Feilding bought 106,000 acres in Manawatu from the Wellington Provincial Government in 1871. The land became known as “The Manchester Block.” Feilding was the first of three towns established within the block. The first group of immigrants selected under the scheme arrived at the site of Feilding in January 1874. Halcombe was settled next, then finally Ashhurst. The towns were intended as bases from which settlers could move into the surrounding bush, break in the land and establish farms for themselves as they got used to their new life	Poor	OK

P 2009.102.32.14 Print, Photographic	The photograph of Kimbolton was taken looking south along the main street. In 1902 the village was a busy, thriving place - the picture shows the many businesses in Kimbolton, with horses and carts driving along a rough dirt road, and locals going about their business. Businesses on the right side of the street include a saddlery, the Family & Commercial Hotel Stables, a building owned by Lowes, while the main building on the left of the picture is probably Hansen's General Store. P 2009.102.32.18 Print, Photographic	An old photograph of H.S Munro's Store in Kimbolton, established 1890. Munro's was both a boot and shoe maker, and an ironmonger. The picture shows the front of the store with various articles on display outside (axes, sacks, coils of wire, mugs, brooms, shovels). There is a horse and part of a cart showing, and six men standing outside - some of them presumably workers in the store.	Poor	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive
P 2009.102.32.19 Print, Photographic	A faded photograph of a Military Camp set up on Mr Levett's property, bottom of Perry's Cutting, Kiwitea, in the 1900's. The picture shows a number of tents(military style) set up on a flat area of farm land. A small number of soldiers can be seen, plus a motor vehicle, and horses by a fence. Beyond the camp is some rolling land showing trees having been felled, then beyond that, standing bush still.	Poor	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive
P 2009.102.32.20 Print, Photographic	A faded photograph of a group of 11 school boys and their teacher - the Kimbolton School Cricket Team. The teacher is headmaster , Hugh McIntyre, who was at the school from 1893 to 1904. They are posing outside on a log, Mr McIntyre holding one cricket bat and one of the boys another; a third has a cricket ball.	Poor	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive

P 2009.102.32.24 Print, Photographic	A faded photograph of the official opening of the Kimbolton Swimming Baths at the turn of the century (early 20th Century). The pool looks very basic, having been carved out of the ground, with dirt sides and very murky water! There is a large crowd watching what appears to be a barrell race, with swimmers pushing or rolling barrells the length of the pool. There is a shed behind the spectators, which looks like a changing shed, and the area seems to be fenced in.	Fair	OK	Feilding & Districts Community Archive

P 2009.102.35.380.27 Print, Photographic	Rainbow Arcade, Kimbolton Road, was opened on 14 July 1983 by the Mayor Mr G E Corrick. The rainbow window is the feature of Rainbow Arcade. Designed by Feilding Architect, Lindsay Durrant, his idea was translated into reality by Clelands Glass, using Cathedral glass from Germany. Our photo doesn't do justice to the brilliant colours. Overhead the plastic roofing, known as Qualex, was imported from Israel, and provides protection from the elements and excellent insulation for the arcade. P 2009.102.35.380.28 Print, Photographic	The retirement of three long-serving employees of the Borthwick's Freezing Works at Feilding was marked at a function in July 1983. The Feilding Works Manager, Mr Mike McEntegart welcomed the evening's guest of honor, Mr Alf Hannett, Mr Harold Hankey and Mr Graham Smith, to the large gathering of management and staff. Mr McEntegart said that he was proud to announce publicly that the Feilding Freezing works had that day processed its one millionth lamb for the third season in succession..
